

Hsar Pweh's Bio

Music is my passion. Without music I couldn't live. I started to play guitar when he was eleven years of age and started to write songs when I was about sixteen. I am still learning about music and currently learning how to record music. At home I have a little home studio and it was my dream to have it at home so I could do my own recording. I am on my way in producing my own album and hopes to have it released soon. Music makes me happy and it makes me proud to stand up on my own feet and face the troubles in life that might come along my way. I am not afraid of anything because I have music. Music gives me confidence in life.
